Vanessa: I was just going to text you. Are you free to attend a party next week?
Marco: Might be, depending on who's asking.
Vanessa: Just a girl I know.
Marco: Hm, I'll think about it. So, I'm wondering if you have some free time tomorrow? If you do, we can take a walk in the park ... visit the playground.
Vanessa: I may go out for lunch. If I don't go, I'll text you. If we do go to the park, we'll have to feed the geese!
Marco: Geese, eh? Do you like the petting zoo?
Vanessa: Love it! Can't make it tomorrow. How does Saturday sound?
Marco: Works for me. When we're there, we'll see who can swing higher on the swings.

Asking If or When People are Free

When you want to spend time with someone, you ask them if or when they are free.

You use these phrases to ask people if or when they are free:

I am/was wondering if ...

Are you free on/in ... ?

How does (day) sound?

When are you free to ... ?

What day are you free on?

Examples:

- I was wondering if you wanted to go to the park.
- Are you free in the morning?
- How does Sunday sound?
- When are you free to get some ice cream?

Learning Points

The First Conditional

You can use the first conditional to talk about actions and situations in the future.

There are two parts to the sentence.

One part is the condition. The other part is the result.

Form:

If + subject + Simple Present tense + subject + will

You use a comma after the condition in this form.

You can flip the two parts of the sentence so that the result comes first. It can be in interrogative form.

Form:

Will + subject + if + subject + Simple Present tense ?

Condition	Result
If we don't go,	I will send you a text.

Result	Condition
Will you text me	when you arrive at the park?
